Since we started Western Birds in October, 1996 we have given directions and coordinates to over 600 different hunting locations throughout the southern half of California — from guzzlers to desert springs to top waterfowl blind sites to the best place to shoot a ptarmigan in California's Eastern Sierra Nevada. We have covered quail, chukar and doves a lot, but also offbeat things — like good places to hunt snipe.

Three special issues we've published have included the coordinates for all 130 guzzlers in the vast Mojave National Preserve, 38 guzzlers in the West Mojave, and 65 guzzlers in the Red Mountain Region. The last two issues also rate each guzzler for chukar use.

Does this sound like something you need for your hunting? At today's gasoline prices, a subscription is about two tanks' full, which you'll save because we're doing the scouting for you.
